

As a very frequent domestic US flyer, I am vigorously opposed to the use of cell phones in-flight. While I use a cell phone frequently for business and personal purposes, I would never consider using one in-flight. However, considering other people's discourteous cell phone manners and poor judgment, I think it would be a major mistake to allow this to happen. Please consider doing the right thing here and truly protect the public in this case. While you may not make certain parts of corporate America very happy, you will certainly make countless friends with the flying public.

Stephen Lesser

Ramsey, NJ